BLAIRMORE LODGE, NO. 68

Of Independent Order of Odd Fellows Instituted on Tuesday

HAD A SPLENDID TIME

Grand Master Presided--Large Attendance--Good Supper--Bright Future

The institution of a subordinate lodge of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows and known as Blairmore Lodge, No. 68, took place in the Mercantile hall, Blairmore, on Tuesday evening last.

Grand Master, W. G. Shera, of Fort Saskatchewan, was present and presided at the institution and was assisted by J. A. Tully, acting as deputy grand master.

At 5 p.m. the members of the order who had applied to the grand lodge of Alberta for a charter, met in the Mercantile hall and opened the second I. O. O. F. lodge in the West. On the arrival of the westbound "local" at 6:30 p.m., which brought a degree team from Pincher Creek, the institution service commenced and twenty-seven candidates received admission into Blairmore lodge, No. 68, of I. O. O. F. and became members of the strongest fraternal organization in the world today and which had its beginning at the house of William Taylor, son of the seven stars second star, Blairmore, Manitoba, on the 26th day of April 1819.

Shortly after the arrival of the members from Pincher Creek about thirty members were driven down from Coleman to put on the first, second and third degrees. This of course, involved a great deal of work and took up considerable time.

At 12 p.m., after the initiation degree had been put on, those present were informed that supper was ready and about ninety members of the order assembled at the Alberta hotel where the genial proprietor, John Carroll, had a bounteous supply of appetizing things nicely arranged on the tables and everything was ready for the inner men. Many said that it was the best supper they ever had.

After this dainty supper had been freely partaken of the members returned to the lodge room where the first, second and third degrees were put on by Coleman teams. At 4 a.m. a happy gathering dispersed, everyone being well satisfied and admitting that they had just taken part in one of the greatest events ever known in this district.

May Blairmore lodge, No. 68, of Independent Order of Odd Fellows, flourish and always endeavor--

"To meliorate the sorrows of mankind, Relieve the poor, the sick, the maimed, the blind; Lift up the drooping heart; the widow cheer, And wipe away the helpless orphan's tear."

To form of men one wide-spread Brotherhood Linked only in the bonds of doing good."

The following are the first officers elected for Blairmore lodge, No. 68, I. O. O. F.:

Noble grand, Rev. J. F. Hunter, Vice grand, George Young, Recording secretary, J. D. S. Barratt, Finance secretary, Dr. J. W. McKay

Happenings in and Around Blairmore

J. E. Woods of Pincher Creek, is in town.

John Herton, M. P., paid Blairmore a visit on Tuesday.

Mrs. Allison and Miss Hunter came up from Pincher Creek on Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Pearson, of the Coleman grocery, were in town on Tuesday.

Service will be conducted at the Presbyterian church on Sunday next, at 11 a.m.

R. G. McNeillie, district passenger agent, C. P. R., Calgary, was in Blairmore Tuesday.

Miss E. Pelletier, of New Westminster, B. C., is paying a short visit to friends in town.

SPLENDID RESIDENCE

One of Best in District Just Completed for H. E. Lyon

Another large and beautiful residence has been added to Blairmore, and the title of 'The Town of Pretty Homes' well belongs to Blairmore.

H. E. Lyon has just moved into his new, attractive and commodious dwelling on the corner of Eighth avenue and Stuart street. The dwelling has just been built by Fraser & Sinclair and is the production of first-class workmanship.

Mr. Lyon's new residence is thirty-four feet wide and forty feet long. Has six rooms upstairs, seven rooms on the ground and has a full size basement, is steam heated throughout, modern in every respect and is one of the best residences in the district.

Quite a number of business men from other towns have recently decided to cast in their lot with Blairmore and in consequence of this many new business buildings have just gone up in 'The Commercial Centre of the Pass'. Local men have also changed their business and have launched out into larger fields of usefulness.

A company which will be known as the Blairmore Cash Trading Co., Ltd., has just been formed and has purchased the entire grocery stock of A. B. Haines. This new company will take charge of the business now carried on by Mr. Haines on November 1st and will conduct it in the same store until a large building, which will be partly brick, is erected on the corner near the Great West restaurant. The new building will be 25 x 60 with a full size basement.

Eczema is Not a Blood Disease

For this reason internal treatment fails to cure Eczema of the Skin.

CHASE'S OINTMENT.

Experience with the use of Dr. Chase's Ointment will soon convince anyone that Eczema is a disease of the skin and not of the blood. A large percentage of the cures brought about by Dr. Chase's Ointment are after the patient has become tired of tedious internal treatment with no apparent result.

Apply Dr. Chase's Ointment and it is not long until there is relief from the dreadful itching and a beginning of the process of healing up the sores. When you have tested this soothing, healing ointment you will wonder why you ever wasted time with internal treatment for eczema.

Mr. A. D. Macaulay, Stornoway, Quebec, writes: "I had itching eczema on my leg for over five years and tried many remedies and several Doctors without benefit. Dr. Chase's Ointment cured me completely."

Flash Life in the Suburbs. City-must-Do you have electricity in your house?

Recognized as the leading specific for the destruction of worms, Dr. Graves' Worm Expeller has proved a boon to suffering children everywhere. It seldom fails.

A teacher in a Midland town is noted for his patriotic fervor. One day in class, while in a particularly uplifted mood, he turned to one of his pupils, an average boy of twelve.

"Now, Tommy," said he, "tell us, on an average, how many times do you think you would find the field of battle?"

"I should think," replied Tommy, "that the wind was blowing."

ST. VITUS DANCE

A Striking Example of Its Cure by The Tonic Treatment.

St. Vitus dance is the commonest form of nerve trouble which afflicts children, because of the great demands made on the body by growth and development, and there is added strain caused by the fact that when these demands become so great that they impoverish the blood, and the nerves fail to receive their full supply of nourishment, that the nervous system is debilitated to St. Vitus dance.

The remarkable success of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills in curing St. Vitus dance should lead parents to give their children this great blood-building medicine at the first signs of the approach of the disease. Pale, listless, irritable, restlessness and nervousness are all symptoms which early show that the blood and nerves are failing to meet the demands made upon them.

Virdee, Man, says: "When my little girl was six years old she was attacked with St. Vitus dance, which was followed by St. Vitus dance. Her limbs would jerk and twitch, and speech became affected, and at last she became so bad that she could scarcely walk, and could not trust her alone. She was under the care of a doctor, but in spite of this was steadily growing worse. It was feared that we would lose her."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills had cured her older sister of anemia. I decided to try them again. After the use of a few boxes, to our great joy, we found they were helping her, and in the course of a few weeks more her power of speech fully returned, and she could walk and do about as well as any child, and she has been well and healthy since. When illness comes to any one of our family now we never call in a doctor, but simply use Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and they never disappoint us."

Mrs. Chas. Gilbert, Haystack, Placentia Bay, Nfld., writes:—"I was a sufferer from salt rheum for ten years, and was cured by eight boxes of Dr. Chase's Ointment. I am heartily thankful for this cure, and want to recommend Dr. Chase's Ointment to other sufferers."

Dr. Chase's Ointment is wonderfully soothing and healing. By its antiseptic powers it cleans out the sores, stops the agonizing itching and soon sets up the process of healing which means thorough cure, if the treatment is persisted in.

Wanted the Usual Signal. The play was Massapa, the strongest scene of which is the heroine, is strapped to the back of a wild horse, which is driven off among the mountains, to wash itself in a lake.

For this scene it was usual to hire a horse from the nearest livery stable. One evening, however, the horse had been sent for the third time, when the stage came. Right away, the stage conductor.

The horse was walked slowly off, amid shrieks of laughter.

Dear Sirs,—While in the country last summer I was badly bitten by mosquitoes, so badly that I thought I would be disfigured for a couple of weeks. I was advised to try your Liniment to allay the irritation and it did so. The effect was more than I expected, a few applications completely curing the irritation and preventing the bites from becoming sore.

Sh Objected. An old Irish woman recently had her first ride in an electric tramcar.

"She had taken her ticket, and was shortly afterwards asked by an inspector to show it to him. To the other passengers' amusement, he said:

"Ticket, yer honour! Shure, I don't sell 'em."

"I know that, my good woman," said the inspector, "but it is your own ticket, I want to see it."

"My ticket, is it you want? Faith, then, you'd not get it. You may buy one for yourself, sure, as I did."

Cheats Train For the Hunt. Trained cheaters are used in Persia and India in much the same manner that hounds are used in Europe and North America.

The game they are used to hunt is principally deer and antelope. The antelope is an animal with black and brown spots resembling a leopard, but longer in body and limbs.

The Indian hunters keep packs of them for the hunt. The heads of the hunting cheaters are usually covered with a hood until within 20 yards of the game.

The hounds are then removed, and the antelope crew, usually lower in the herd and having appeared as near possible, pounce upon their prey, killing with one blow of the paw.

A Singular Request. A peculiar tale is said to overhang the family of the late Sir Julian Gold.

An ancestor of his, so says the legend, once gave shelter to a rabbi, who at his death left him a bequest of a sum of money, which was not to be paid until after the customary seven days of mourning.

It happened, however, that a curse would fall upon the family, if the money was paid before the seven days were up. In it was found a document which said that in the junction of the rabbi and his money, he had no future owner of the estate would be succeeded by a son. And such, strangely enough, has been the case ever since.

SCOTLAND YARD.

His Council of Blasts is a Thing Dressed by Kilt-Dancers.

In the great, rather grim, red-brick building which, like a medieval fortress, dominates the Thames, within the walls of the House of Commons, there is a large, bare-furnished room, which holds more secrets than any other in London.

With the possible exception of the room of Cabinet Ministers, it is the nerve centre of England's great and complex detective system, which controls the currents radiating all the way from the discovery of crimes and it is in this secret chamber that the mysterious Council of Seven hold their meetings to unravel the tangled skeins of tragedy.

If walls could speak, the walls of this room could unfold stories of crime, tragedy, and mystery such as would drive the writers of fiction to despair, for there is no room of crime which has not been dissected and laid bare there in all its complex and hideousness. But walls are dumb, and the members of this secret Council, who recognize that silence is one of their most powerful weapons.

This Council has not long been in existence, in fact, it is practically unknown to the outside world. It is only a short time since it occurred to the authorities of New Scotland Yard that in place of casual conferences between detectives engaged in the solution of some problem of crime, it would be to appoint a body of their cleverest detectives—men of acute and astute brains, with long experience and training—to combine their efforts in solving the principal mysteries; and, as might be expected, the scheme worked admirably.

The greatest case has naturally been taken in choosing men for this responsible work. It was important that the Council should, as far as possible, be composed of men of the highest caliber. The detective who has specialized in murder or burglary may know little of, say, colliers and the beginning letter imposters; and thus the leading expert in each of the principal branches of crime was chosen, and who know practically all that is to be known about their own branch and its professional and whose names are a terror to evil-doers the whole world over.

But let us see how this Council works. Suppose that a mysterious murder has taken place in London. Within an hour the police have been reported to the nearest police station the detective-inspector and his assistants are at the scene making investigations. Meanwhile the news has been flashed to New Scotland Yard, and the members of the Council have well commenced their inquiries. A member of the Council—the man whose speciality is the murder case—appears on the scene and takes charge of the operations.

It is his duty to keep things simple, as it often is, and the murderer is speedily run to earth, the services of the Council are naturally not required. But if there is no sufficient clue to the assassin, or he has made his escape, the Council is summoned, and takes the case in hand.

All the available evidence is placed before it and thoroughly sifted, deductions are made, a plan of campaign is drawn up, and the most complicated and far-reaching machinery of Scotland Yard is set to work under the collective guidance of the cleverest detective brains in England. How energetically and thoroughly the Council does its work has been shown in the recent Crippen case, in which a closely-meshed net in a few days threw round the world for the capture of the criminal.

Schools for Barods. A small, dark man, accompanied by two beautiful women in eastern dress and a third in a more modern costume, landed in England the other day. No one who saw him and his party, which he accompanied, could have dreamed of his being a demagogue on board during the voyage from America.

In a very hot tent were arranged all the insignia about to be bestowed on me. Having taken off my uniform coat, I thrust my legs, already clothed in a pair of field boots and velvet cord riding breeches, into a pair of capacious pantaloons of French silk embroidered in gold and lined with red. A silk shirt, also embroidered and lined, was put on and confined at the waist with a silk sash. Then came the shawl and over this a fur cape of lion's mane. By this time it was difficult to breathe.

"My discomfort," continued, "increased by having a silver gilt anulet fastened to the waist with a gold ornament, a rhinoceros horn and a pair of lion's mane. By this time it was difficult to breathe."

"I was told to try 'Fruit-lives' and sent for six boxes. Now I can eat anything, can eat any ordinary food and never have a headache."

All the goods a slave acquired belonged to his master, who could take them from him whenever he pleased, the slave having no freedom of his person, the master being a man's purchasing his own freedom. The only hope for the slave was to get into one of the walls of a town when he became free, the townsman granting him liberty on the condition of his helping them fight the nobles.

The first sum noticed was on March 30, 1789, when $1,300 was carried to the public account in consequence of a note received by the chancellor. The writer with troubled soul inspired him, "as an honest man, to consider the money the property of the nation and to be so just to apply it to the use of the state in such a manner that the nation would not suffer by its having been detained."

By the Card. "Will Brother Jones kindly lead?" was asked by the pastor at the beginning of a prayer service.

Waking with a start at the mention of his name, the deacon alone broke the silence by replying, "I feel that time; it's you turn; what's trumpet?"

STOMACH MISERY

LOADED WITH SPLENDOR. Fearful and Wonderful Active and a Trying Ceremony.

Association with the body, but it is often uncomfortable to the body. A description of the ceremony which F. Harrison Smith had to go through when he received a royal honor from King George V. is told in "Through Abyssinia" and sounds most unenviable. The author was an envoy from Queen Victoria.

In a very hot tent were arranged all the insignia about to be bestowed on me. Having taken off my uniform coat, I thrust my legs, already clothed in a pair of field boots and velvet cord riding breeches, into a pair of capacious pantaloons of French silk embroidered in gold and lined with red. A silk shirt, also embroidered and lined, was put on and confined at the waist with a silk sash. Then came the shawl and over this a fur cape of lion's mane. By this time it was difficult to breathe.

"My discomfort," continued, "increased by having a silver gilt anulet fastened to the waist with a gold ornament, a rhinoceros horn and a pair of lion's mane. By this time it was difficult to breathe."

"I was told to try 'Fruit-lives' and sent for six boxes. Now I can eat anything, can eat any ordinary food and never have a headache."

As Pa Sees It. Little Willie—"Say, pa, what is vulgar ostentation?"

"That's vulgar ostentation, my son, is the display made by people who have more money to make it with than we have."—Chicago News.

Minard's Liniment Relieves Neuralgia. "While I was engaged to her she made me give up drinking, smoking, and golf. Last of all, I gave up something on my own account."

"What was that?" "The girl."

In the cause of infant mortality cholera morbus figures frequently, and it may be said that complaints of the bowels are great destroyers of child-life. If all mothers would avail themselves of so effective a remedy as Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Dysentery Cordial many a little one could be saved. This Cordial can be given with safety to the smallest child, as there is no injurious substance in it.

What's the difference between a United States insurgent and a South American insurgent?

"That's easy. A South American insurgent shoots with a cannon, a United States insurgent shoots at a cannon."

THE MUSCOVY DUCK.
"John, John, said Maria, 'The old duck is itching her back under the creek, and they'll all get drowned!'"
"Very much," when John got there the old Muscovy grabbed the last bit of the duck and fed him over the top.
Gentle reader, if your old duck does the same, don't risk your life to save the little rubberneck. Muscovy ducks are just getting them the old swimming lesson. And don't be surprised if she flows in the bumper and, sticking her head out of the chimney, in South America, where

SHE HAD THE ROCKS.
There was a pretty Mrs. Blank, who had a green-eyed husband. Her figure, too, was up to date. In fact, she was a beauty.

She was a way of making friends. That was the main thing. Indeed, she was in love with her. They simply just had to.

And scandal never had a word to say about her life. While Mr. Blank was a man, she seemed model man and wife.

But what surprised the ladies most was how this woman danced. Indeed, she had the whole package. "Was candidly confessed."

Why, when she came into the church the choir all went flat. The women felt at once at ease. When they saw her swell out.

Now, all these anxious women knew her husband was rich. They all were puzzled how she could dance at such a high level or two. So a committee went around to call on Mrs. Blank.

To get from her a tip or two. How to attain such a peak. She told them her chicken coop.

And showed them her fine flocks. The mystery there at once lay bare. She had the chicken flocks.

O Rocks, O Rocks, that all egg crooks. You beat the best, you do. To pay Maria's tale and flocks. And Mrs. Blank was too.

BARNITZ.

KURIOS FROM KORRESPONDENTS
Q. I had so many chicks dead in the nest last season and I don't know which part of the hatch the germ is most liable to injury from shock—too much heat or cold?

A. The first shock, especially for broods, eight to twelve days for exposure to heat and cold.

Q. Does it injure a slow bird to let her hatch?

A. No. After such a rest a hen is healthier, a better layer, breeder, mother and lays sooner and is in better shape for show.

Q. Do you help little chicks out of the shell?

A. Very seldom and only when we see that dryness prevents chick from escaping. The chicks that can get out are generally quicker and stronger than very weak and amount to nothing.

Q. After a chick picks the egg how soon should it come out?

A. In five to ten hours, quickest under best.

Q. I recently set an incubator with six eggs and got twenty-two chicks. There were six infertile and six eggs were broken during hatch. How many of the eggs were fertile?

A. Eighty-four. Infertile eggs are never rotten during a hatch. The six eggs were broken during hatch. The six eggs were broken during hatch.

Q. I understand some fatteners put cream and butter on their show birds' plumage with hydrogen peroxide. How do they apply it? Does it cause decay?

A. This is a fatter's trick. You must buy from vendors of "poisonous" soaps. Peroxide does not bleach but it bleaches the yellow from the beak and legs and makes the feathers so brittle that any judge may discover the trick by simply rubbing and bending the feathers. It also causes temporary suffering.

Q. I set an incubator and hen on the same date. The hen hatched her chicks in twenty-one days, and the machine hatched in nineteen days. Will you explain?

A. The hen hatched O. K. but you ran your incubator too hot, and the forced chicks will likely be weaklings.

Q. How do you get broods from adoptive incubators? Is it all in money or just in instance.

A. The hen must have been broody for a week or so. In fact, broody chicks under her nest and make it dark. They must get acquainted and the next morning take them off and feed, giving the hen whole corn and chick feed together. By this plan we have had hen take chicks a week old.

DON'TS.

Don't try to hurry prosperity by any method that will make what you gain a source of pain or permit others to remark, "There goes a human shark."

Don't ridicule the farmer as a "punk-bird." He looks from nature's nature's side as he grows up the sweet green seed. He turns that furrow in the field that earth may for you never breed yield.

Don't look upon the city man as a stick-up. Those folk mind the dust and noise of wish for quiet country joys and look upon the city man as brother in the one great plan.

Don't stir up prejudice against yourself by running down another's flock. If his flock is all folks will see it. If his eggs are bad they need no ad.

DECAY AND DIRT.

These seem to be the prevailing conditions in China.

"Along the Peking-rail is a characteristic feature of the Chinese, writes the correspondent of the London Times. 'It is the national failing to spend money on repairs and then leave the buildings to fall gradually into decay and ruin. Not a thing is cleaned, and the equal of that is a feature of the Imperial palace in Peking is most extraordinary. A few miles out of Peking there is a fine stone bridge of five arches, but the pillars falling away, the parapet has disappeared, and the flagstones with which it is paved have gone and below, so that the cart rumbles and creaks and bumps across it in a way that would break any but a Chinese's spiritless cart. To repair it is no one's business.'"

At another stage in his journey he remarks: "Perhaps to some extent the anticipated coming of a railway, which will kill the present cart traffic, may account for the shocking condition of the native lanes. With railway extension in the air there is no inducement for the housekeeper to spend money on the upkeep of his house. Nothing is repaired. Their filth and squalor are appalling. In the yard a well has its mouth below the level of the soil so that water which is spilled may flow back into the well and carry with it the surface drainage."

"A doctor must notice the prevalence of consumption. To the universal habit of expectoration on the floor, the exclusion of air and the absence of drainage this prevalence must be due."

MUSCOVY DUCK.
(they are wild, they nest in the highest trees.)

They lay fifty greenish eggs a season, incubation requiring about five weeks.

Drakes weigh from ten to twelve pounds and ducks from six to eight.

They are pure white or glossy blue black and white.

"They have caruncles on their face, like a turkey, and often moist bare, so that hunters may pick them right up."

"The drakes are great fighters. When angry they raise their crest, wiggle their tails, hiss and charge."

"They are the oddest, most ornamental and dullest little ducks."

"Not fit to eat," replies Mrs. Know-it-all. "Our first Muscovy duck was PROPOSED Plan to Smooth the Passage to Europe.

Pouring oil on the troubled waters will be much more than a metaphor if a plan offered by the United States hydrographic office is carried out. Its serious proposal is to keep the path between New York and the northern European ports well oiled so that the waves may be kept down and passengers may cross in perfect comfort.

The hydrographic office has not a lot about waves and claims that nothing is so bad for 'em as oil. Moreover, oil spreads quickly and thinly over the water, and hence the calming effect is done at small expense. A quart of cheap petroleum an hour for each ship, they say, do the work in decent weather, and $25 per trip ought to cover it easily. With the big liners constantly passing the path will be smoothed away by the ocean currents would be reduced without delay.

Maybe some day we shall have a wrecking crew to repair mid-ocean oil leaks. The oil will be poured on the hydrographic office will need more than crude oil to calm the storm of ridicule which this plan of theirs has awakened. It is a plan to keep the water that they have never yet seen an ocean that would hold still long enough to be called—Success Magazine.

Arctic Magnetism.
The campaign for the extension of our knowledge of the magnetism of the earth is to be extended into the arctic regions during Captain Almundsen's north polar expedition, which is now being fitted out by the American government. Dr. Harry Edmonds, has been selected to accompany the expedition for the winter months.

Almundsen's plan is to enter the polar basin by way of Bering strait and then drift with the ice. While it is not his purpose to attain the pole he hopes that the course of the drift may take him across or close to it.

These new campaigns are two in number and were discovered Sept. 30, 1900, to the east of the Myrta Major, where he could find over previous best.

They were not completely new. Not a trace of them could be found in the records of previous years. He regards the evidence as strong that the canals are not simply new to astronomers, but new to Mars. Measurement of their dimensions show each of them to be 1,000 miles long and about twenty miles wide. The Canyon of the Colorado would be a secondary affair in comparison.

King Solomon's Treasure.
In an effort to find King Solomon's treasure and the crown of David, a syndicate of capitalists, led by the Earl of Morley's heir presumptive and a near relative of the Duke of Pine, are now starting an expedition to the eastern slope of Zion.

Two members of the Turkish parliament are continually present, this being one of the conditions laid down by the authorities before permission to begin the excavation was given. Large sums of money were spent in obtaining the permit, in paying the expenses of carrying on the work. More than sixty men are engaged at a weekly expense of more than $4,000.

The Three Georges.
There are now three King Georges—George of the British Empire, George of the Greek and George of the Prince. The last named is now little more than a nominal sovereign, but he sits on the throne of the monarchs. More the late Lord Salisbury's last international debt the King's archbishop in the Pacific has been a British prince.

King George is very fond of playing cricket—Chicago News.

RAPE FOR FORAGE.

Net For Milk Cows, but Excellent For Dry Cows, Sheep and Hogs.

I have given rape a thorough trial and found it a most valuable crop for summer and fall pasture, partly on account of its providing excellent pasture until late in the fall and also because it is very useful in cleaning the land, says a correspondent of the Orange Judd Farmer. It does not, however, provide a proper food for milk cows owing to its favoring the milk and butter somewhat similarly to turnip tops, but as food for dry cattle, sheep and hogs it is most excellent, furnishing an abundant pasture from the middle of July until very late in the fall if cattle are given their liberty.

The expense of growing rape is very trifling, as the seed costs but a few cents per pound.

From two to three pounds is sufficient for an acre, providing it is sown in drills, which is the proper way. Any soil which will produce a good crop of turnips will give a good crop of rape.

The preparation of the ground should be the same as that for turnips, although commonly it has usually been sown on ground so much over-run with weeds as to be unfit for a spring crop.

It is best to sow the rape in a single row and sow the rape in drills about two feet apart. By this means the ground can be worked with scudger or horse hoe until the rape has covered it over. With suitable growing weather this only requires about a month or six weeks.

Where the ground is moderately strong and has been well prepared rape usually grows from two feet to three inches high and is fully ready to cut in about six weeks.

It is not necessary to cut the rape at all, but it is better to cut it at eight weeks, and if the leaves are eaten off at this time a fresh, tender crop quickly follows.

The whole crop can be cut in one week and obtained in this way than if left uncut until fall.

Rape may be sown with a fair chance of growing in a northern latitude as late as July 1. The crop may be harvested by cutting with a scythe and throwing in small heaps, which can be baled to the stable as required. Animals should not be turned into rape while it is wet with dew or rain unless they have had freedom to it previously.

Cotton in New England.
A curious experiment in cotton growing in a northern latitude has been tried in Indiana, Ohio, western Massachusetts, says the American Agriculturist. Last year two residents of that state succeeded in growing well developed cotton, and they propose to try it again this year in fact, have the seeds are planted and the growth is rapid. The seeds were obtained from a bale of cotton from the south and sent from one of the large cotton plantations in that section. The cotton blossoms are of a reddish hue and quite fragrant. To ensure the commercial value of the cotton, the farmer has been very careful to keep the plants free from insects and other pests.

GENERAL FARM INTEREST.
Overseas and struggles to the soil and land in the most favorable conditions. The day most profitably grown in rotation with other crops.

A set of farm buildings well planned for the farmer's use, and the same impression is made on the owner, and that of is immeasurably more important than any other.

Some people judge a farmer by the fences he maintains. The wise man looks over the fence and sees the crop in the field. Therefore, your work on your fields though the fences have to be good and rough.

The man who can competently face his soil and his politics, who can weed and not disturb his hoe and cultivator had better let the other man raise the potatoes and he give all his time to crops that can successfully compete with weeds.

Some one asks, Does it pay to take a hoe into the cornfield? If the hoe is used to pull weeds and you use it vigorously to destroy the stray weeds along the row it pays well. Should you be one of the few who use the hoe to pull weeds and you use it vigorously to destroy the stray weeds along the row it pays well. Should you be one of the few who use the hoe to pull weeds and you use it vigorously to destroy the stray weeds along the row it pays well.

Salvage for his wound.
A Strange Scene That Was Not on the Bill of the Circus.

Unusual dramatic scene, was playing in Florence in one of its finest theaters, where he had to make his enemy with dagger in hand, in the best of his passion, Grasso let the weapon slip out of his hand. It alighted in the pit on a man's head, cutting it slightly.

An indignant member of the audience flung the knife back to the stage, where it was dexterously caught by Grasso. Raising it aloft in his hand and as if it were a sword, he snatched it in two and then stamped upon it.

With a swift bound, Grasso was in the pit beside the injured man. The next minute he had climbed back to the boards, with the victim in his arms.

After setting him in a chair Grasso threw himself on his knees and began a long prayer. The crowd, which was rapidly gathered by the much embarrassed playgoer, who on his side begged to be allowed to return to his seat, was silent.

But this was not to be until Grasso, weeping copiously, had bestowed no fewer than fifty resounding kisses on the forehead of the injured man.

The action was greeted with loud cheers, and after Grasso had gracefully bowed to the audience, the play was resumed and successfully concluded.

Parls of the Hair Cut.
"Ouch," cried the barber and something besides. He stuck the end of his thumb in his mouth and began to cry.

"Cut yourself!" asked the man in the chair.

"No, it's an ingrowing hair," replied the barber, "ingrowing hair under my thumb nail."

The man in the chair laughed.

"What's the matter with you? You're not a common hair barber. In giving a customer a hair cut a bit of hair often lodges under the finger nail, and if it does not get out it will grow and get sore. Sometimes we don't even know it there until it begins to get in his skin. It hurts like hell, and it's a terrible nuisance. You don't believe me, ask any barber and he'll tell you the same thing."—New York Times.

A Gun Club's Treasure.
Thirteen million cartridge shells, the result of several years shooting by the members of a gun club, have been gathered into a huge pile by one of the leading sporting organizations of England. These shells are one of the members conceived the idea of having the members save all their shells and deposit them on the pile. The club has not the club's most prized possession. If a single man were to shoot one cartridge a second day and the club would have about twenty-five years to disburse 13,000,000. The club maintains a vigilant guard over its precious store pile.

Filial Reverence.
Richard Brinsley Sheridan, who was always distressed for money, was one day talking his face with a dull razor when he turned to his eldest son and said:

"Turn, if you can any more of your razor on my face, I'll cut you off with a shilling."

"Very well, father," said Tom, "but where will you get the shilling?"

The Prize Holder.
"I understand you have a fine track horse," said the visitor to the man who was showing him over the college campus. "What individual holds most of the medals?"

"The town pawnbroker," answered his guide after due deliberation.—New York Journal.

SINGS ITS DEATH SONG.

A Peculiar Bird Found in the Jungles of South America.

It is a very rare bird in the jungles of northern South America. It is called the "puff" by the natives, but is known to science as the galeated curassow. It is a highly remarkable bird, because of its peculiar habits.

It does not really sing, but makes a deep humming noise, which would very much resemble the sound of a motor car engine (the curassow has been).

"It is while uttering this lugubrious cry," said a South American traveler, "that the puff usually moves to its death, for the hunter can then easily track it to its retreat, and it falls a victim, as the Indians say, to its own death song."

If the puff gets suspicious it immediately ceases humming, and that is a sure indication to the hunter that the bird has seen him or some danger.

In such a case the only thing for the sportsman to do is to remain perfectly still. The puff becomes so used after waiting awhile and again begins to hum. "The corpse lies here," it can then be cautiously approached and killed.

If it is only wounded the puff usually escapes, though it cannot fly much better than the ordinary domestic fowl. It is a very tame bird and will outrun the hunter until it is lost in the dense undergrowth of the jungle.

In the mating season the male puff is the most noisy of birds and will fight its own kind whenever it meets them. Often the fight ends in the annihilation of both combatants.

Duchess of Roxburgh.
The Duchess of Roxburgh, who was Mary Stuart of New York, and the Duchess of Buccleuch are warm friends of Queen Mary of England.

The story goes that they will aid the present queen, in riding the coast of men and women who enjoyed the favor of King Edward VII. but who originally would not be received in royal society.

The free and easy members of King Edward VII's court, it is said, are doomed to social oblivion, and the former Mrs. (now Countess) of Buccleuch is the best of the women who now is queen. She and her husband associated with the Prince and Princess of Wales, and the four found much in common.

Though an Princess of Wales the present queen seemed to care little for society. She was a French woman, a stern mind and a thorough appreciation of the social problems abroad of her and has assumed with much vigor the management of the court ceremonies.

A Queuing Luncheon.
Girls who want to give clever, intelligent luncheon, in which all or many of the dishes are given names.

Every guest is given a chance to find out what the food is before the feast is served. (Girls are handed around and small berries. There are a dozen or more sentences written on the cards.)

The one who guesses the most of these correctly is awarded a prize. It is not necessary to serve the food. It is only necessary to guess it. A luncheon would result if the luncheon served the luncheon which is on the card.

One of the best of these is as follows:
First.—Rhubarb of looking—Oysters.
Second.—The penalty of absence—Bread.
Third.—Made even by its mother—Vinegar.

Fourth.—Boston diet—Beans.
Fifth.—Forbidden to Jews—Pork.
Sixth.—Rhubarb of stupidity—Loose.
Seventh.—Universal crown—Hare.
Eighth.—Largest part of the foot—Sole.

Ninth.—To shrink from danger—Quail.
Tenth.—Lullaby situation—Pickles.
Eleventh.—Tailor's tool—Goose.
Twelfth.—Country of the sublime pain—Turkey.

Thirteenth.—One of Noah's sons—Ham.
Fourteenth.—Woman's weapon—Tongue.

Teacher Correct Speech.
A woman's culture and travel has made a glorious success of her correct speech, says the Delineator. It is surprising how much incorrect speech there is among our educated people.

They cling to provincialisms, incorrect pronunciations, wrong use of words and unimproved innovations. The southern belle holds to the soft pleasantry of her "mammy" days, the middle westerner flatters all his women, and the Bostonian throws his "r's" completely out of joint. This woman undertakes to correct such errors and teach a pure, perfect English speech to a few young women.

She became so successful that she was compelled to start a school of correct English, which has grown to great proportions. This particular pronunciation is in every town in America.

Mint Tea For the Nervous.
Mint has many virtues and a few vices, says the New Orleans Picayune. When washed, the leaves pulled from the stems, and the water is poured over them, results a "mint tea" that is a sovereign remedy for nervousness.

In preparing it, mix the leaves with a little water, and let it steep for a few minutes. Served in a thin glass with cracked ice and a little sugar in it, it cools and quiets the system generally.

To Restore Feathers.
Feathers that have grown grumpy may be restored to their original softness by washing them in a solution of which they should be shaken out well or in the hot sun until dry.

Woman's World

Queen of Roxburgh's Favorites of New English Queen.

It is a very rare bird in the jungles of northern South America. It is called the "puff" by the natives, but is known to science as the galeated curassow. It is a highly remarkable bird, because of its peculiar habits.

It does not really sing, but makes a deep humming noise, which would very much resemble the sound of a motor car engine (the curassow has been).

"It is while uttering this lugubrious cry," said a South American traveler, "that the puff usually moves to its death, for the hunter can then easily track it to its retreat, and it falls a victim, as the Indians say, to its own death song."

If the puff gets suspicious it immediately ceases humming, and that is a sure indication to the hunter that the bird has seen him or some danger.

In such a case the only thing for the sportsman to do is to remain perfectly still. The puff becomes so used after waiting awhile and again begins to hum. "The corpse lies here," it can then be cautiously approached and killed.

If it is only wounded the puff usually escapes, though it cannot fly much better than the ordinary domestic fowl. It is a very tame bird and will outrun the hunter until it is lost in the dense undergrowth of the jungle.

In the mating season the male puff is the most noisy of birds and will fight its own kind whenever it meets them. Often the fight ends in the annihilation of both combatants.

Duchess of Roxburgh.
The Duchess of Roxburgh, who was Mary Stuart of New York, and the Duchess of Buccleuch are warm friends of Queen Mary of England.

The story goes that they will aid the present queen, in riding the coast of men and women who enjoyed the favor of King Edward VII. but who originally would not be received in royal society.

The free and easy members of King Edward VII's court, it is said, are doomed to social oblivion, and the former Mrs. (now Countess) of Buccleuch is the best of the women who now is queen. She and her husband associated with the Prince and Princess of Wales, and the four found much in common.

Though an Princess of Wales the present queen seemed to care little for society. She was a French woman, a stern mind and a thorough appreciation of the social problems abroad of her and has assumed with much vigor the management of the court ceremonies.

A Queuing Luncheon.
Girls who want to give clever, intelligent luncheon, in which all or many of the dishes are given names.

Every guest is given a chance to find out what the food is before the feast is served. (Girls are handed around and small berries. There are a dozen or more sentences written on the cards.)

The one who guesses the most of these correctly is awarded a prize. It is not necessary to serve the food. It is only necessary to guess it. A luncheon would result if the luncheon served the luncheon which is on the card.

One of the best of these is as follows:
First.—Rhubarb of looking—Oysters.
Second.—The penalty of absence—Bread.
Third.—Made even by its mother—Vinegar.

Fourth.—Boston diet—Beans.
Fifth.—Forbidden to Jews—Pork.
Sixth.—Rhubarb of stupidity—Loose.
Seventh.—Universal crown—Hare.
Eighth.—Largest part of the foot—Sole.

Ninth.—To shrink from danger—Quail.
Tenth.—Lullaby situation—Pickles.
Eleventh.—Tailor's tool—Goose.
Twelfth.—Country of the sublime pain—Turkey.

Thirteenth.—One of Noah's sons—Ham.
Fourteenth.—Woman's weapon—Tongue.
